Treasurer's Workshop

This past week, members of the VicToRy project traveled to York for the Treasurer's Workshop. Two of our long-term Expert Users, who are currently creating the county classroom training that will be delivered in a couple of months, demoed new functionality in the system. The county treasurers also got to participate in a Test Drive, during which they processed various transactions, reconciled their day, and provided great feedback.

End-to-End Testing

With Business testing coming to a close on June 21st, the project is gearing up to welcome state and county staff for End-to-End testing. This phase of testing will begin on July 8th and conclude on October 4th of this year. Different from Business testing, which is more granular in nature, End-to-End testing is broader in scope, allowing testers to evaluate how entire processes will work from beginning to end.

Those participating will be able to bring paperwork from their office that they have already handled through VTR and try processing it in VicToRy. This includes end-of-day balancing spreadsheets or other documents. The practice of evaluating entire processes combined with the utilization of real paperwork provides a comprehensive look at whether the system is performing as it needs to be.

With over 26,000 duplicate VINs across the state, a much needed cleanup is in order. Duplicate VINs in VicToRy will need to be verified or given an Assigned ID. So which VIN wins? It's a combination of "First Come, First Served" and "To the Passenger/Truck Go the Spoils."

Word of advice? Beware of the duplicate trailers.

They're everywhere!

Meet the Team

DMV employee Michalle Hall and FASTies, Ross Melby and Erin Murphy, have taken on the immense task of developing the inventory portion of the VicToRy system. Over 100 different locations issue and/or receive inventory and there are over 200 different types of inventory items that range from plates and decals to title stock and VIN plates. In addition to working with this cornucopia of inventory, this team also works on the development of business registration functionality and dealer plate management. Through their efforts, counties will have a robust system capable of thorough and extensive inventory management as well as intuitive functionality for the registration of business entities.

Question: What has been the biggest challenge you've faced on this project?

Answer: It's not just a copy/paste from the old system to the new system. There is a lot of work that is done. Also writing test scenarios to make sure the system, once developed, will/can do what needs to be done and stops what can't be done.

Question: Please list one fun fact about yourself.

Answer: I'm a BIG Dirt Track Racing junkie. I had the opportunity to drive a real Nascar by myself for eight laps at the Kansas Speedway a few years ago, and I actually got to really see what it was like to go the speed and feel the adrenaline of going over 130 MPH. What a RUSH that was.

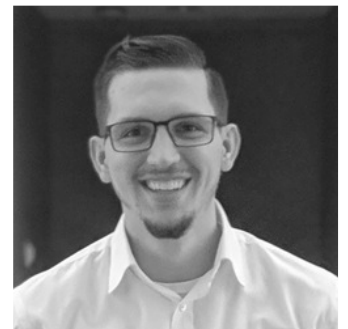

Ross Melby

Question: What VicToRy feature or functionality are you most excited about?

Answer: The ability to better monitor and manage inventory levels. Because VicToRy is one big happy system, we will know what the counties have, what they need, and when they need it. We've been working on a restock feature that will create orders automatically when a certain inventory type gets too low.

Question: What is your favorite thing about living in Nebraska?

Answer: Nebraska reminds me of my motherland, North Dakota. Wide open spaces and good people.

Erin Murphy

Question: What has been the biggest challenge you've faced on this project?

Answer: Keeping track of all the plate types, knowing how each type sequences, and which counties use which types.

Question: What has been your biggest project accomplishment?

Answer: Generating files that are compatible with the system that the Department of Corrections uses to print license plates.
